Introduction

Iran is among the Southeast Asian countries (Middle East) which neighbors Afghanistan and Pakistan in the East, Turkmenistan in the Northeast, Azerbaijan and Armenia in the Northwest, and Turkey and Iraq in the West.

With an area of more than 1648195 km² this country accommodates more than 75 million people.

The geological characteristics and metallogenic suitable conditions of Iran have led to the discovery of 68 minerals and about 60 billion tons of absolute and probable reserves. These conditions along with the area of the land, relative abundance of energy resources and strategic position have provided the basis for advantages presented to investors active in this sector. The strategic position of Iran, its location (which is on the lifeline of Middle East, Asia, Central Asia, Europe, and Africa), and rapid access of foreign investors to Iranian markets and 15 neighboring countries (with a population of more than 500 million people) have set the scene for an increase in the investments in Iran. The volume of previous exploration activities is insignificant as compared to the mineral reserves of Iran.

So far, exploration activities have been mainly focused on surface resources. However, using the geological sciences associated with mining and by developing and completing minerals discoveries at depth and surfaces it is possible to identify, discover and operate rich resources.

The geological characteristics of Iran can lead to a considerable increase in the production of minerals such as copper, lead, zinc, iron, gold, rare earth elements, barite and other industrial ores, non-metallic substances, and decorative and surface stones. Such an increase is highly promising for investments in the discovery of mineral reserves.

Presentable Products

Participants are not allowed to post any sign on the wall of exhibition hall, or outside their booth area. The participant is responsible for exhibitor's dress. Presenting goods conflicting with Islamic affairs is forbidden. Participants are responsible for keeping their goods during exhibition's working hours, but out of the mentioned hours, the organizer is responsible for maintaining their stuffs. In case of causing any damages by the exhibitor, he should pay all the charges based on the authorities' permission. Presence of participants or their representatives is required in order to answer the questions and take care of the properties during visiting hours.

Booth Construction and Preparation

If the participant has his own plan for constructing the booth, he should inform to the organizer 30 days before the opening. Also, he is required to introduce his performer to the organizer, and after organizer's confirmation and payment of the exhibition's fees, they can build their booth. All operations, arrangements and preparation should be done 24 hours before the opening, and empty boxes should be put outside the exhibition area. In case of causing any damages by the exhibitor, he should pay all the charges based on the authorities' evaluation. Organizer is responsible for overall cleanliness of exhibition, and participants are responsible for their own booths' cleanliness. They should clean their booths every day before the visiting hours.

Insurance and Safety Measures

Participants are responsible for maintaining their performing stuffs, goods and equipment; it is essential for exhibitors to insure their stuffs, equipment and personnel's stuffs against the fire and other hazardous events. Participants are responsible for incoming accidents happening to their employees, and the organizer has no obligation in this case. Participants are required to put the flammable objects such as boxes and empty cartons outside, and avoid keeping them behind the panels and cables tracks. In order to keep such stuffs, the organizer will consider a place for them. There is no responsibility for participant in case of unforeseen events such as wars, earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, fires leading to cancelation or change of the exhibition date. The money is refundable after the deduction cost.

The Booth Evacuation and Delivery

Collecting and packing the stuffs should be done a day after the end of the exhibition. If the participant could not evacuate the booth in the designated date, the organizer does not have any responsibility for participant's stuffs and booth. If the participant does not evacuate and deliver the booth on time, the organizer is allowed to destruct and transport the stuffs. It is obvious that participant should pay all charges for destruction and transportation. If the stuffs are avoided to fake out in case of disputation, the participant should pay the storage cost. If the participant does not take any action for resolving the problems or taking out the stuffs after one month, the organizer can confiscate them; if the official value of the confiscated stuffs is less than the cost of damages, the organizer can get the additional cost from the participant.
